

Attending Research Conferences “SUCCESSFULLY”

Research conferences offer valuable opportunities to network, present your research, and explore cutting-edge developments in your field. Whether you're attending your first conference or have experience with multiple events, navigating the fast-paced environment can feel overwhelming. This workshop will provide essential tips on preparation, including travel logistics, delivering effective research presentations, networking strategies, and professional attire. Join us to learn how to maximize your conference experience and make meaningful connections!

Facilitated by Dr. Ken Seligson, Department of Anthropology

FEB 25th | 2:30-3:30 PM | Zoom

SCAN to Register & Join

